Amendments to the Abstract

Please replace the abstract beginning at page 10, line 1 with the following amended paragraph: --

Methods and apparatus, including computer program products, for selecting are used to select a renderer. The techniques include receiving a A client identifier is received that identifies a client[[;]]. comparing the The client identifier is a string that is compared with each of one or more client templates, where each client template is being associated with one of a plurality of renderer in a plurality of renderers[[;]]. A generating a score is generated for each comparison, the score reflecting the similarity between the client identifier and the client template, and. based Based on the score, selecting a renderer is selected from the plurality of renderers for use in communication with the client. --